

Leadership Essentials for Contemporary Law Enforcement Trust Funded Training Opportunity

The course will demonstrate how first line supervisors can develop the ability to inspire greater productivity and performance from officers/deputies. This course is designed for first line supervisors. Course prerequisite requires that students attending have some supervision experience, working in capacity of corporal, sergeant, detective supervisor, or lieutenant. Participants will take part in leadership case studies analyzing real world leadership issues.

The course is taught by Dr. Rich DeParis, a former law enforcement commander and organizational specialist. Dr. DeParis holds a PH.D. in Public Administration with specialization in Organizational Leadership and Management. Dr. DeParis is the president of the Center for Police Leadership and he teaches throughout the country.

Seating is limited to 25 participants. Please register early if you plan to attend.
